Discovery Yachts are based in Marchwood and create and create a range of luxury blue-water cruising yachts designed for short-handed sailing.

Recently Discovery have taken a departure from their production of monohulls to create the Discovery Cat 50, the largest production catamaran currently built in the UK. This state of the art multihull is packed full of innovative designs and offers spacious on-board living with world-class cruising performance and has already won 4 international awards in 2011, including US Magazine, Cruising World, Best Catamaran 2011.

The light and airy, contemporary interior offers a sumptuous home afloat with a choice of cabin configurations and semi-customised interior options. The numerous portlights, windows and hatches ensure exceptional visibility from the navigation station and spacious living area. The cockpit of the Discovery Cat 50 offers a generous dining area with specially angled seats for real comfort as well as two magnificent sun beds where you can lie sheltered from the wind.

Developing the Discovery Cat 50 required the company to invest in a major expansion programme to accommodate the extra space required to build a large catamaran. A new production facility was set up to house the development and construction of the moulds and build and fit-out the hulls.

The launch of the Discovery Cat 50 has enabled Discovery Yachts to tap into the rapidly growing multihull market.
