New Milton Advertiser & Lymington Times for Incuhive

Business Contact: Ben Craig

New Milton Advertiser & Lymington Times have been producing newspapers since 1928, and although there has been a year on year decline of 20% within the industry, they are doing all they can to keep their audiences tuned in to what is going on in their local community via their trusted newspaper.

Having noticed the tough time that the industry was going through, New Milton Advertiser & Lymington Times were keen to recreate themselves to staff and move with the times. So with the help of Angel Investors, IncuHive is designed to assist and support new business in the area and to provide new opportunities for young entrepreneurs. The building has desk/office and workshop space available to rent as flexibly as the business requires.

IncuHive can offer more than just space to rent, they can offer support and monitoring for a variety of businesses across many sectors. There is a huge skills set behind IncuHive which will all contribute in keeping this initiative going and the quality of work to a high standard. One of their aims is to create a community where their businesses can share ideas and skill swap with one another.

The project is very flexible and is able to move in any direction needed to get the most out of it. They are able to make it affordable due to the amount of space they currently have. The new and exciting initiative is also home to the largest Fab Lab in the world.
