WP Group are fuel and lubricant specialists based in Hardley with expertise in fuel for heating, aviation, marine and motorsport.

Last year the WP Board established a Sustainability Committee which undertook a rigorous review of the company’s sustainability credentials. Key pledges were made to reduce the level of consumption within the business and these included reducing quantities of waste disposed in landfill, decreasing the amount of energy used through good management, training and informed purchasing and considering the impact on natural resources when choosing goods and materials.

Employees are encouraged to suggest ways in which the business could reduce its impact on the environment and directly engage with the initiatives which are promoted.

Over the past 12 months, WP has implemented a variety of energy saving initiatives including environmental impact training for all staff, electronic invoicing and online forms to reduce paper usage, and computer and light shutdowns outside of work hours.

In 2013 WP Group launched ‘Sustainability in Action’, a company-wide commitment to behave ethically, value their people, work with other local companies and set an example in protection of the environment. Sustainability now represents the first line in the company commitments and philosophy statement.
